How to clean tiles correctly

6 TIPS for a perfectly clean floor

1. Prevention

Use so-called cleaning zones before entering buildings. These should be at least 2-3 steps in size, which will minimize dirt brought into the space. This can be done by mats that are quick and easy to clean.

2. Regular cleaning

Regular cleaning will make the tiles look like new and make your space more beautiful and presentable. The amount of cleaning depends on the intensity of use, but we recommend cleaning tiles at least once a week, ideally every day.

3. Cleaning agents

One of the most important conditions for effective cleaning is the right cleaning agent. We recommend using the proven products Forteclean. You can choose from several special cleaners for each type of floor.

4. Quick removal of dirt

Impurities, corrosives or solvents such as petrol or diesel can cause irreversible damage with prolonged exposure. It is therefore necessary to remove such substances from the tiles as quickly as possible. In the event that the liquid also leaks into the locks, the tiles should be disassembled as soon as possible, cleaned and dried thoroughly before reassembly.

5. Proper selection of the cleaning disc

When cleaning with a cleaning machine, we recommend choosing a cleaning disc with red brushes. When cleaning manually, we recommend reaching for a classic brush with medium-hard bristles, which can get into the fine grooves of Fortelock tiles.

6. Protection

Effective prevention against dirt is the application of a special polyurethane protective varnish to the tiles, which will facilitate their subsequent maintenance and improve their appearance. The varnish is applied directly during production and you get a ready-made lacquered tile.
